

Make the right choice.

Choose a CSIA member for all of your plant automation projects.

Members of the Control System Integrators Association (CSIA) provide the necessary professional services you expect and deserve. From the vision, planning and development stages, to installation, training and ongoing support, CSIA members add value to your projects.

Technology is an ever-growing portion of your operations, and the technologies involved are becoming increasingly complex. This means that automation and system integration elements are even more critical to your success. CSIA members consistently add value and minimize risk by providing experience, expertise, resources, financial stability and business acumen to every job.

Separating control system integration "performers" from "pretenders" is what CSIA is all about. We assist our members by helping them develop effective business skills, providing standards for sound business practices and demonstrating how to incorporate insightful metrics to ensure implementation of best practices.

Enjoy the confidence of knowing your next project will be a resounding success. Contact one of the CSIA members listed below today!
